The TRiO Lending Library Policy

As the cost of tuition rises, we understand that the individual class requirements sometimes become a financial burden for many students and parents. The TRiO Lending Library was created to relieve some of the financial obligations of TRiO CATS participants. Although the borrowing of books by participants is free from the charge of money for the act of borrowing, borrowers must take full responsibility for books checked out to them and must agree to give compensation for damages or losses incurred. The following borrowing conditions must be understood and agreed upon before the student can be entitled to borrowing privileges:

- Books are available to current TRiO CATS participants who are in good standing with the University of Missouri.
- Books are available on a first come, first serve basis.
- Damage to all books belonging to the TRiO Lending Library must immediately be reported to Carol Howald, TRiO Director, at 573-882-2493.
- Books borrowed from the TRiO Lending Library are due by the last day of the check-out semester or within 48 hours of dropping the associated class. The books should be returned to 100 Student Success Center. Failing to comply with this demand will lead to a transcript hold being placed on my records.
- If a student drops/withdraws from a class during the semester, the TRiO CATS office should be notified and the book(s) should be returned within 48 hours of the drop/withdrawal date. Failing to comply with this demand will lead to a transcript hold being placed on my records.
- Upon the check-out of books, students must sign the TRiO Book Liability Agreement which reflects the above requirements.
